Back in Texas

It's great to be home.

On November 1, I began my duties as the new Director and Librarian of the Texas State Library and Archives Commission. As a native Texan and a former employee of the agency – I worked as the Library Systems Administrator in Library Development from 1991 to 1996 – returning to the State Library was indeed a homecoming both professionally and personally. I consider it a great honor to have been selected as State Librarian, and it has been wonderful to find that so many of my valued colleagues both within the agency and statewide are still working hard for Texas libraries and library users.

I am eager for the challenge. There is much work to be done, both at TSLAC and in the library and information community statewide. I consider myself fortunate to have arrived at the beginning of a new budget cycle, with over a year to prepare for the next legislative session. We will be using that interval wisely to both demonstrate to the Legislature that we are spending the newly appropriated funds from the last session expeditiously and effectively, and to build consensus for our approach for seeking legislative support for TSLAC and Texas libraries in the next session.

TSLAC provides an amazing array of services for the public, for libraries, and for state and local government. Consider the following:

- Library users statewide log over 180 million sessions on TexShare databases each year
- TSLAC's collection includes 130 million pages of archival documents and almost two million print volumes
- Readers of non-standard print borrow over 900,000 items per year from the Talking Book Program
- Other state agencies store over 375,000 cubic feet of paper records and 285,000 rolls of microfilm with the TSLAC State Records Center
- Over 30,000 persons attend TSLAC webinars and other training sessions each year

But as great as these services are, they are a drop in the bucket compared to the need. For example, consider that the 14,131 active patrons of the Talking Book Program represent less than 7 percent of persons eligible for the service statewide. And consider that while the agency stores about 372,000 cubic feet of paper records, there is no agency tasked to be responsible for the archiving of electronic records statewide. And of course, there are the many needs of libraries and their users, including access to emerging technologies, alignment with local workforce priorities, and development of multicultural programs and services to meet our state's changing demographics.

The world of information services is evolving rapidly. Our team at TSLAC recognizes a number of ways in which the agency could and should be a leader in assisting the public, libraries, and state and local government. TSLAC should be taking a lead in the area of archiving digital records; in helping libraries build more robust online services, including mobile access; in steering efforts to find alternatives to e-book access; and in improving access to reading and information resources for persons with disabilities.

Our team is eager to support libraries as they build stronger local economies, support educational opportunities and lifelong learning, prepare preschool children to enter school reading or ready to read, encourage civic engagement through community commons uses of libraries, and ensure open access to government resources. We need to be at the forefront of conversations about how to retool libraries to fulfill these and other roles and to remain responsive and sustainable institutions into the future.

Thanks to the efforts of our staff, our commissioners and advisory boards, and especially our faithful advocates in TLA and across the state, TSLAC was able to recover much of what was lost in the previous biennium, including new funding for TexShare databases, for archival positions, and for repairs to

TSLAC's Sam Houston Regional Library and Research Center in Liberty,

Texas. But there is still more to be done if we are to fulfill our true leadership role in helping ensure that Texans have access to the library, archives, and information services they need to thrive.

As we move into early 2014, we will be starting a new agency strategic planning process that will form the basis of our Legislative Appropriations Request (LAR) for the next biennium (2016-17). I will be asking for the help of Texas library supporters and advocates to achieve our mission and thereby help you to achieve yours. I hope that you will help us in the following ways:

- Let us know how TSLAC can better serve you and support your priorities for library and information services to your customers
- Become involved in TLA's legislative activities and tell your legislators about the great work that libraries do in your communities and on your campuses and how the State Library helps you
- Recognize that TSLAC is an agency with a diverse mission, but that all parts of the agency are working for a common vision that Texans have access to information to improve their lives

Thank you for your dedication to a profession that can change lives. Your work ensures that our libraries are building strong communities in hundreds of cities and towns statewide. I look forward to working with librarians, library advocates, and information professionals to find ways to tell the story of how libraries contribute to strong, vibrant communities across Texas. I intend to do whatever I can to help support your work in this important effort. Working together, we can do great things for Texas libraries. 🌟

Lions and Tigers, and Dues, Oh My!

One of the most critical issues for any membership association is the cost of dues. While members understand that dues are an essential means for supporting the association's mission and operation, the topic of increasing them can be met with fear. As many of you know, the Texas Library Association (TLA) Executive Board has submitted a proposal to raise the professional association dues for members. As the Board has examined the association's financial outlook and potential of a dues increase, Board members felt a bit like Dorothy and company in L. Frank Baum's The Wizard of Oz setting out on an unknown and potentially scary road ahead. Of course, as librarians (and not unlike Dorothy), we will not be turned back from what we know must be traversed.

The past several years have been challenging for TLA, just as it has been for Texas libraries. The "perfect storm" of layoffs and lost jobs for librarians, loss of funding, fewer tax dollars, and a lagging recession led to financial challenges for the association as well as our members. Over the past few years, TLA has made numerous budgetary reductions while still continuing to improve member services and pressing forward on our strategic goals.

As part of my job as a professor at the University of North Texas Department of Library and Information Sciences, I attend many other professional association conferences and meetings across the country. Yes, we have had challenges in our state, but our association has continued to provide the best programming, continuing education opportunities, and membership support in the country. The Executive Board, administrative staff, and TLA financial advisors have consistently looked at budgetary scenarios and made adjustments in spending and staffing in order to continue offering the superior services and programming our members have come to expect.

In order to prepare for a strong future, the Executive Board has discussed methods to achieve association goals and meet members' expectations. Inherent in this discussion is consideration of an increase in membership dues for the first time in more than 10 years. In fact, by the time the proposed dues increase is implemented if approved, 14 years will have gone by without an increase. The last was in 2001. Can you think of anything else that has not increased in cost in 14 years?

The Board's rationale and proposal is further outlined in "The Dues Proposal in Detail" accessible on the TLA website. The comments here are to provide you with context the Board considered when outlining this proposal. The fact is that raising dues is a necessary part of the lifecycle of any professional association. One element that was a standout in this review was the overwhelming support and praise for the work of TLA in providing a dynamic and nationally-recognized state association for the Texas library community. The fact is WE ARE TLA – all of us – librarians, lay supporters, all library workers. The association is a conglomerate of our work, ideals, and needs. TLA reflects the best of us and has been a successful organization for over 100 years precisely because it is built on the talent and commitment of its members.

We are at a critical time, and we – as a professional and powerful organization – need to grow our commitment, investment, and services in today's competitive environment. We are looking forward to working alongside you in promoting a wonderful future for library services in Texas.

Fair Use Alive and Well ... for the Time Being

BY GRETCHEN MCCORD

On November 14, 2013, the Southern District of New York decided the most important case on copyright fair use in two decades. Its holding in The Authors Guild v. Google,¹ along with recent holdings in The Authors Guild v. HathiTrust,² and Cambridge University Press v. Georgia State University,³ confirm – for the moment – that fair use is indeed alive and well, even in the face of increasingly extreme challenges from corporate copyright owners.⁴

What fair use is really about

Contrary to media implication and popular belief, the purpose of U.S. copyright law, as defined by the Constitution, is not to protect or reward creators of copyrightable works, but to promote the creation of new works. We do this by attempting to maintain a balance between (1) incentivizing creation of new works by granting creators the rights to control uses of their works and (2) limiting those rights so that others may use and build upon the works. Fair use is the flexible tool whose role is to ensure that, when allowing a use would do more to further the purpose of copyright than would disallowing the use, the use may proceed.

(For a general explanation of fair use, see Bare Bones of Fair Use, at www.digitalinfoclaw.com/bare-bones-of-fair-use.html.)

What happened?

In 2004, Google announced its Google Books project. Less than one year later, the Authors Guild (representing authors, publishers, and others in the publishing field) filed suit, alleging copyright infringement.

Through the project, Google digitized, in their entirety, over 20 millions books in the collections of major research libraries. The majority of the books were out of print but still protected by copyright. Each participating library was allowed to keep one digital copy of each book scanned from its collection.

Google users can search the full text of the digitized books. For books still protected by copyright, the displayed results for each identified title include up to, and no more than, three “snippet views” (1/8 of a page including the term searched) from the book and an information page that includes a list of sellers of the book and libraries holding the book in their collections.

Several limitations are meant to prevent searchers from piecing together an entire book, snippet by snippet:

- Only one snippet view per page is displayed, regardless of how many times the search term appears on that page.
- No more than three snippets from a single book are shown.
- No matter how many times a user searches for the same term, additional snippets from a given book will not be returned.
- At least one of every 10 pages in each book is excluded from the display.
- Snippet view results are not given for books consisting primarily of discrete entries, such as dictionaries and cookbooks.

Why was the Author's Guild unhappy?

In the lawsuit, the Author's Guild claimed that Google infringed three rights in the “bundle” of a copyright owner's rights: (1) reproduction, by scanning the books; (2) distribution, by giving digital copies to the libraries; and (3) public display, by displaying portions of the books in search engine results.

But what was the underlying motive for the lawsuit? In the digital age, it is easier, quicker, and cheaper than ever before to infringe copyright, and to do so on a large scale. Corporate copyright owners too often tend to panic in the face of the potential for such extreme copyright infringement. Their concerns are legitimate, but unfortunately, they have not always responded in the most productive way. This lawsuit is just one example.

How did the court apply fair use?

Throughout its opinion, the court relied heavily on amicus briefs filed by the Library Copyright Alliance,⁵ including its multi-page discussion of the benefits of the Google Books project. In a nutshell, the benefits cited by the court were:

- the ability of “readers, scholars, researchers, and others” to find books using full-text searching;
- the value to scholars and researchers of text mining;
- making the books available to underserved populations, such as the sight-impaired;
- helping to preserve books; and
- benefitting authors and publishers by helping readers and researchers identify books.⁶

The first fair use factor (purpose and character of the use) asks (1) whether the use is more commercial or non-profit educational; and (2) whether or not the use is transformative. Although the transformative character of a use does not guarantee a finding of fair use, transformative works “lie at the heart of the fair use doctrine,” because they further the very goal of copyright. The more transformative the use, the less significance will be given to the other factors.⁷

The court found Google's uses to be “highly transformative.” By using the “snippet” display, Google “transforms expressive text into a comprehensive word index,” thus “us[ing] works for a different purpose” than the original. In addition, when Google “transformed book text into data for purposes of substantive research, including data mining and text mining,” it created “something new in the use of book text.” Finally, the court said, rather than superseding or supplanting the original books, Google Books “adds value to the original.”⁸

On the question of commercial purpose, the court was careful to focus on the actual use Google made, rather than the status of Google itself. (Courts sometimes confuse the two or do not distinguish; the fair use analysis is all about the actual use, not the user.) The court emphasized that, although Google itself is “largely a commercial enterprise,” it did not directly profit from its copying, display of, or distribution of the books or portions thereof, because it sells neither the scanned copies of the books nor the displayed snippets. “[E]ven assuming Google’s principal motivation is profit, the fact is that Google Books serves several important educational purposes.”⁹

Thus, the court held the first factor to “strongly” favor fair use.¹⁰

The second fair use factor considers the nature of the work being used. Because all of the books were published and most non-fiction, this factor favored fair use.¹¹

The third factor (amount and substantiality of the portion used) asks not just how much did the defendant use, but “why?” Specifically, did the defendant take more than, or something other than, what was necessary to achieve its purpose?

The Google Books court found that copying the books in their entirety “is critical to the functioning of Google Books” and pointed out that the amount displayed is quite limited. Thus, even though copying in full usually means this factor disfavors fair use, the court held it to weigh only “slightly against” fair use.

Addressing the fourth factor (effect on the potential market for the work), the plaintiffs argued that the scanned copies would act as a “market replacement” for the books and that users could piece together an entire book by manipulating terms in multiple searches. The court said, “Neither suggestion makes sense,” noting that: Google does not sell the scans; it would be impossible for a user to piece together an entire book by making multiple searches; and although each library received one digital copy of each book from its collection, the library already owned that book. Thus, this factor “weighs strongly in favor” of a fair use finding.¹²

Combining the “significant public benefits” of Google Books with its analysis of the four fair use factors, the court held Google’s uses to clearly constitute fair use and dismissed the case, summarizing as follows:

... Google Books ... has become an invaluable research tool that permits students, teachers, librarians, and others to more efficiently identify and locate books. It has given scholars the ability ... to conduct full-text searches of tens of millions of books. It preserves books, in particular out-of-print and old books ... and it gives them new life. It facilitates access to books for print-disabled and remote or underserved populations. It generates new audiences and creates new sources of income for authors and publishers. Indeed, all society benefits.¹³

What is the significance of this case for libraries?

In this new era, in which large copyright owners increasingly attempt to control any use of their works, including legal uses, even to the point of suing their own customers (one of the primary financers of the GSU case is the Copyright Clearance Center) and content providers (the publisher-plaintiffs in the GSU case are suing the very authors who write for them, usually for free), information users need strong court decisions applying fair use to new technological uses. We need decisions reminding us all that the rights of information users do not end with hard copy printed works. And in the face of pending appeals of all three recently decided cases, information users need the proactive work of the library community more than ever.

State Library and Federal Funding

The Texas State Library and Archives Commission (TSLAC) is in the process of appealing the decision of the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) to deny TSLAC's request for a waiver from maintenance of effort requirements (MOE) for federal funding. As many may recall, the state budget cuts in 2011 resulted in an elimination of nearly $30 million dollars in biennial funding for TSLAC. Because of that cut, Texas was no longer able to meet its 2012 MOE target figure (an average of the previous three years of state funding), a state funding floor needed to be eligible for federal funds. (The anticipated loss of yearly federal revenue is roughly $3 to 7 million and is ratable to the level of cuts. Prior to 2012, TSLAC had been receiving from $10 to $11 million a year in federal funds.)

After receiving official notice from IMLS that the agency failed to meet federal requirements, TSLAC submitted a request for a waiver from those federal requirements in June 2013. The agency was notified in early fall that the waiver request had been denied. In a lengthy letter, IMLS cited the primary rationale for the denial as the fact that TSLAC was cut disproportionately among similar state agencies. The waiver request noted the agency sustained a 64% cut.

After consultations with IMLS staff, State Librarian Mark Smith and staff began working on an appeal for reconsideration of the waiver request. To that end, TSLAC gained clearance to recalculate the State's funding of library services over the past several years. The goal of this effort was to lower the MOE target in previous years so that the MOE target in 2012 was lower than previously calculated. The result of this effort is that Texas is now shown as cutting funding by about a third rather than two-thirds. With this change, the state is eligible for another (approximate) $3 million in federal funding that would have been denied.

TSLAC is now completing the appeals process for the remainder of the funds ($3 - $4 million). The appeals process will now focus on the fact that the agency was not disproportionately cut in comparison to other agencies. A decision by IMLS on the Texas appeal is not expected before the January 2014.

Texas Book Festival

Applications for this year's TBF public library grants are now available. Public library grants are given in three categories: Collection Enhancement, Literacy Initiative, and Technology. Please note that the application process and guidelines have been redesigned this year. Applications are now open for the 2013-2014 cycle. Applications must be postmarked by January 31, 2014. For more information visit www.texasbookfestival.org/library-grants/.

TBF raises funds to support these libraries through a variety of programs, events, and fundraising channels, including individual, corporate, and foundation grants and support.

TLA Awards

It is awards season again. Be sure to check the TLA website for information about association-wide and unit-level awards.

Librarian of the Year: Recognizes extraordinary leadership or service within the library community within the past 12-18 months.

Distinguished Service: Recognizes outstanding and continuing service in one or more areas of the library profession.

Lifetime Achievement: Recognizes an exemplary career in librarianship.

Outstanding Services to Libraries: Given to an individual or to an organization in recognition of outstanding lay advocacy.

Wayne Williams Library Project of the Year: Recognizes a project that exemplifies the highest levels of achievement, professional standards, and inspiration to other libraries.

Libraries Change Communities: Given to a collaborative community effort that recognizes positive achievements and promotes outstanding library-based initiatives in Texas.

Benefactor(s): Recognizes substantial donations.

Reading Lists for Everyone!

Back to school after the winter break is the perfect time to catch up on TLA's many reading lists, including the new Texas Star Book List.

The Tejas Star List is central to a new voluntary reading program for ages 5-12. It focuses on bilingual (English/Spanish) and Spanish language titles. TLA's Tejas Star Reading List Task Force has recently assumed sponsorship of the list, which originated as the Tejas Star Book Award under the auspices of the Region I ESC." The titles are listed at www.txla.org/tejas-star.

Be sure and visit TLA's reading list page for information about all of TLA's reading lists. Several new lists have been issued this fall, and the latest 2x2 Reading List will be released in January.

- 2x2: Age 2 through 2nd grade
- Texas Bluebonnet Award: Third through sixth grade
- Lone Star: Sixth through eighth grade
- Tayshas: High school
- Maverick: Graphic novels
- NEW! Spirit of Texas Reading Programs for middle school and high school
- Lariat: Recommended fiction for adults

Leading Digital Information Law Specialist Gretchen McCord to Partner with TLA

Libraries are at the forefront of public access to information in all formats, and the need for professional guidance in the complicated arena of digital law has never been greater. The Texas Library Association is proud to announce Gretchen McCord has been selected as special counsel to the Association.

A key element of this partnership will make professional legal services accessible and affordable to Texas libraries that are institutional members of the Association. TLA Executive Director Patricia Smith states, "Library staffs can now benefit from Gretchen McCord's expertise in demystifying copyright, privacy, and social media situations they frequently encounter."

TLA Institutional Members can benefit directly from this new relationship by receiving a discount (usually 10%) on most of the services McCord offers in her practice, from legal consultation to training. For more information, visit McCord's website at www.CopyrightOfficeronCall.com. To join TLA as an Institutional Member, go to: www.txla.org/join-organization.

A New Year for Continuing Education

Resolve to add to your skill and knowledge sets in 2014; TLA makes it easy with online webinars that convey continuing education credit. In addition, the webinars will be recorded with a link sent to all registrants. Visit www.txla.org/CE to register and for news on additional webinars from TLA as they are scheduled during the spring.

Speakers

James Patterson

International best-selling author James Patterson has set records for the most consecutive hardback titles to reach No. 1 on The New York Times bestseller list. The world-wide demand for his books and his prolific work ethic led The New York Times Magazine to call him the man who “transformed book publishing.” He is the first author to achieve 10 million ebook sales. Patterson is also a committed supporter of literacy and teaching. From the James Patterson Pageturner Awards to his website ReadKiddoRead.com and his College Book Bucks scholarships, Patterson has passed on his passion of books and reading. His works include Along Came A Spider, First to Die, and The Kiss.

Basketball legend Kareem Abdul-Jabbar has been an inspiration on and off the court. The all-time leading scorer for the NBA is also a coach, best-selling author, and cultural ambassador. Through the Skyhook Foundation, he works to raise the academic aspirations of students by connecting them with mentors. He continues his diverse writing and has just completed his new children’s book Sasquatch in the Paint, the first installment in a planned trilogy. His other works include On the Shoulders of Giants: My Journey through the Harlem Renaissance and A Season on the Reservation.

Henry Winkler is an actor, producer and director best known for his portrayal of Fonzie on the hit 1970s sitcom Happy Days. Some of his other credits include Scream (1996), The Water Boy (1998), The Practice, Arrested Development, and Royal Pains. He served as the producer of All the Kids Are Doing It and is an advocate for several groups that benefit underprivileged

Technology Conference within a Conference (Ticketed, register online only)

9:00 AM - 4:00 PM

Spend a day with our Tech Camp Counselors and earn life-saving badges of knowledge to move your library down the 21st century technology trail. From examining the evolving needs of libraries to finding the best way to inspire a child with Web tools, the topic of technology integration is essential and the focus of this all day forum.

Camp Schedule

8:30-9:00 – Arrival & Registration: FREE CAMP T-shirt and other goodies!

9:00-9:45 – LEVELS OF TECHNOLOGY INTEGRATION with Bruce Ellis

We all agree that technology integration is a good thing. Trying to explain what it looks like for teachers with different skill levels, though, may prove more challenging. By identifying specific levels of technology integration, our teachers are better prepared to accurately self-assess their own level of use/integration and develop a plan for how to go deeper in their journey of integrating technology in meaningful ways in their classroom.

10:00-10:45 – BREAKOUT SESSIONS (Choose one; these repeat 3 times during the day.)

- Game On! Using Game Based Learning to Ramp Up Your Instruction: Learn how to incorporate console video game systems like the Nintendo Wii/ Xbox Kinect and Game Based Learning strategies into library instruction and programming in order to build successful collaborations and impact student learning. – Jennifer LaGarde

- Get Organized: Librarians are busy people! How does one keep up? A Tech Ninja reveals some of the “latest and greatest” organizational tech tools you can use for FREE! – Todd Nesloney
- Cyber Safety and Digital Citizenship: We are all bombarded with technology, and each person has an expanding digital footprint. We will talk about ways to safely interact online and limit the access others have to your information. You will receive resources to share and use with your teachers, students, and parents. – Bruce Ellis
- I ♥ Bluebonnets: Digital promotion and Programming: Expand your digital toolkit to engage students and promote your Bluebonnet Program with tips from the TBA committee. You and your readers will ♥ Bluebonnet books using fun apps and programs. – Mary Jo Humphreys
- The Best Tech Tools I've Ever Used: As rapidly as technology is evolving, what technology tools will enhance your library program, classrooms, and school?

You will learn some cutting edge tools, creative and crazy apps, with an energy and flare that will leave you excited about making an impact in your district. – Matthew Nichols

- It's Appy Hour with No Cover Charge: This session is packed with the best free apps available for iPads in the classroom. Companion websites will also be included for a refreshing taste of new technology integration ideas! – Naomi Bates

12:00-1:30 – Mess Hall / CAPE OPTIONAL!
LEADING FROM THE LIBRARY!

The evolving needs of library communities require dynamic and ever changing roles for librarian-leaders. Jennifer LaGarde will help arm future library-leaders with the tools they need to move out of the stacks and into the limelight where library programs are recognized as essential rather than expendable. – Jennifer LaGarde

2:45-3:30 – WEB COLLABORATION TOOLS

What does it take to inspire a child? How can we help students on a much deeper level? It's all about building relationships among educators; and by using Web collaboration tools, it's easy!

3:30-4:00 – TEXAS MEDIA AWARDS
ANNOUNCEMENT, WRAP UP, Q&A, EVALUATION, NETWORKING, TAPS

Take a Chance on Art

TLA's Texas Library Disaster Relief Fund assists libraries that have been damaged by floods, fires, tornados, hurricanes, and other such calamities. When you take a chance on art, you're also increasing the chances that affected libraries can recover quickly. At the same time, of course, you're giving yourself a chance to take home a masterpiece!

Tickets may be purchased onsite at the Disaster Relief Table in the Market Street Lobby, from roving volunteers, or online. Visit the Itsy Bitsy Gallery (www.txla.org/gallery) for more details.

The drawing will be held during General Session II on Thursday, April 10.

GENERAL SESSION I with James Patterson

8:30 - 10:00 AM

James Patterson

International best-selling author James Patterson has set records for the most consecutive hardback titles to reach No. 1 on The New York Times bestseller list. The world-wide demand for his books and his prolific work ethic led The New York Times Magazine to call him the man who “transformed book publishing.” He is the first author to achieve 10 million ebook sales. Beyond his tremendous literary legacy, Patterson is also a committed supporter of literacy and teaching. From the James Patterson/Pageturner Awards to his website ReadKiddoRead.com and his College Book Bucks scholarships, Patterson has passed on his passion of books and reading. His works include Along Came A Spider, First to Die, and The Kiss. Hear him speak about his life and latest works Nevermore, NYPD Red 2, and Unlucky 13. Free books will be provided to attendees.

James Patterson, Little, Brown, and Company.

GENERAL SESSION II with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar

4:00 - 5:30 PM

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar

Basketball legend Kareem Abdul-Jabbar has been an inspiration on and off the court. The all-time leading scorer for the NBA is also a coach, best-selling author, and cultural ambassador. Through the Skyhook Foundation, he works to raise the academic aspirations of students by connecting them with mentors. He continues his diverse writing and has just completed his new children's book Sasquatch in the Paint, the first installment in a planned trilogy. His other works include On the Shoulders of Giants: My Journey through the Harlem Renaissance and A Season on the Reservation. Do not miss the opportunity to hear this internationally-known champion for kids.

To Catch a Texas Thief: Are You Easy Pickings or Safe and Secure?

11:00 - 11:50 AM

Texas libraries are experiencing accelerated criminal activity resulting in the loss of tens of thousands of dollars in materials. Focused on certain subject areas and some disciplines more than others - and with current title lists seemingly used as shopping lists - librarians must struggle to identify, manage, and reduce losses. The presenters cover real recent situations and address identifying threats, assessing risk and insurance, designing space for security, inventorying assets, and providing instructions for equipment and signage.

WORDS GRANT:

DISASTERRELIEF](http://WWW.ALA.ORG/AASL/DISASTERRELIEF)

WHEN YOUR SCHOOL LIBRARY PROGRAM IS GONE, THE LOSS TO THE SCHOOL COMMUNITY IS BEYOND WORDS

SCHOOL LIBRARIES ARE MUCH MORE THAN LITERACY CENTERS.

They serve as a safe environment to explore and learn, access new information technologies, and collaborate with peers. When a school library program is destroyed by a natural disaster, the students and the community feel the immediate loss of a valuable resource that reaches far beyond books.

Since 2006, the American Association of School Librarians, with funding from the Dollar General Literacy Foundation, has given more than one million in grants to over 125 school libraries across the country affected by natural disasters.
